Assistance for trafficked persons

Those affected by trafficking in human beings and exploitation are entitled to information, advice and support. Specialised counselling centres also help them enforce other rights, such as access to subsistence benefits, accommodation and healthcare. There are approximately 50 counselling centres supporting trafficked persons and migrants subjected to violence across Germany. Most of them are members of the German NGO Network against Trafficking in Human Beings (KOK).

Counselling centres that are members of KOK all follow high quality standards, taking into account the needs of the person and addressing discrimination. Specialised counselling centres advise individuals affected in a comprehensible manner, with their best interest in mind, regardless of their residence status.

Overview of services provided by the specialised counselling centres

- Free, anonymous, confidential and holistic advice and support with no ties to any public authority
- Counselling services in the client's mother tongue or using an interpreter
- Psychosocial care for traumatised women and girls
- Legal information
- Safe accommodation in crisis situations

The professional counselling, support and assistance they offer help empower trafficked persons and improve their lives in the long term.

Specialised counselling centres also engage in educational and awareness-raising measures to combat trafficking in human beings:

- Training courses and campaigns aimed at preventing trafficking in human beings
- Training courses for law enforcement agencies
- Information for persons who may be affected
- Networking workshops with police forces, lawyers, staff from relevant authorities, among other stakeholders
- Talks in schools or with educators
- PR and political advocacy work
